Killer Bees

What are killer bees?

Killer bees are Africanized honey bees. They are a cross-breed of African and European honey bees. Killer bees look just like European bees. It takes an expert to tell them apart. African Honey Bees are much more aggressive than the European Honey Bee. Killer bees are very easily provoked. They swarm and follow their

Where did killer bees come from?

Why are killer bees dangerous?

Where do killer bees nest?

Killer bees are less selective than other bees when they are choosing nesting sites. Killer bees like to nest in man-made objects like walls, sheds, porches, crawl spaces, or anything with room, even trash cans and old cars. But killer bees live in natural features, too, like hollow trees.

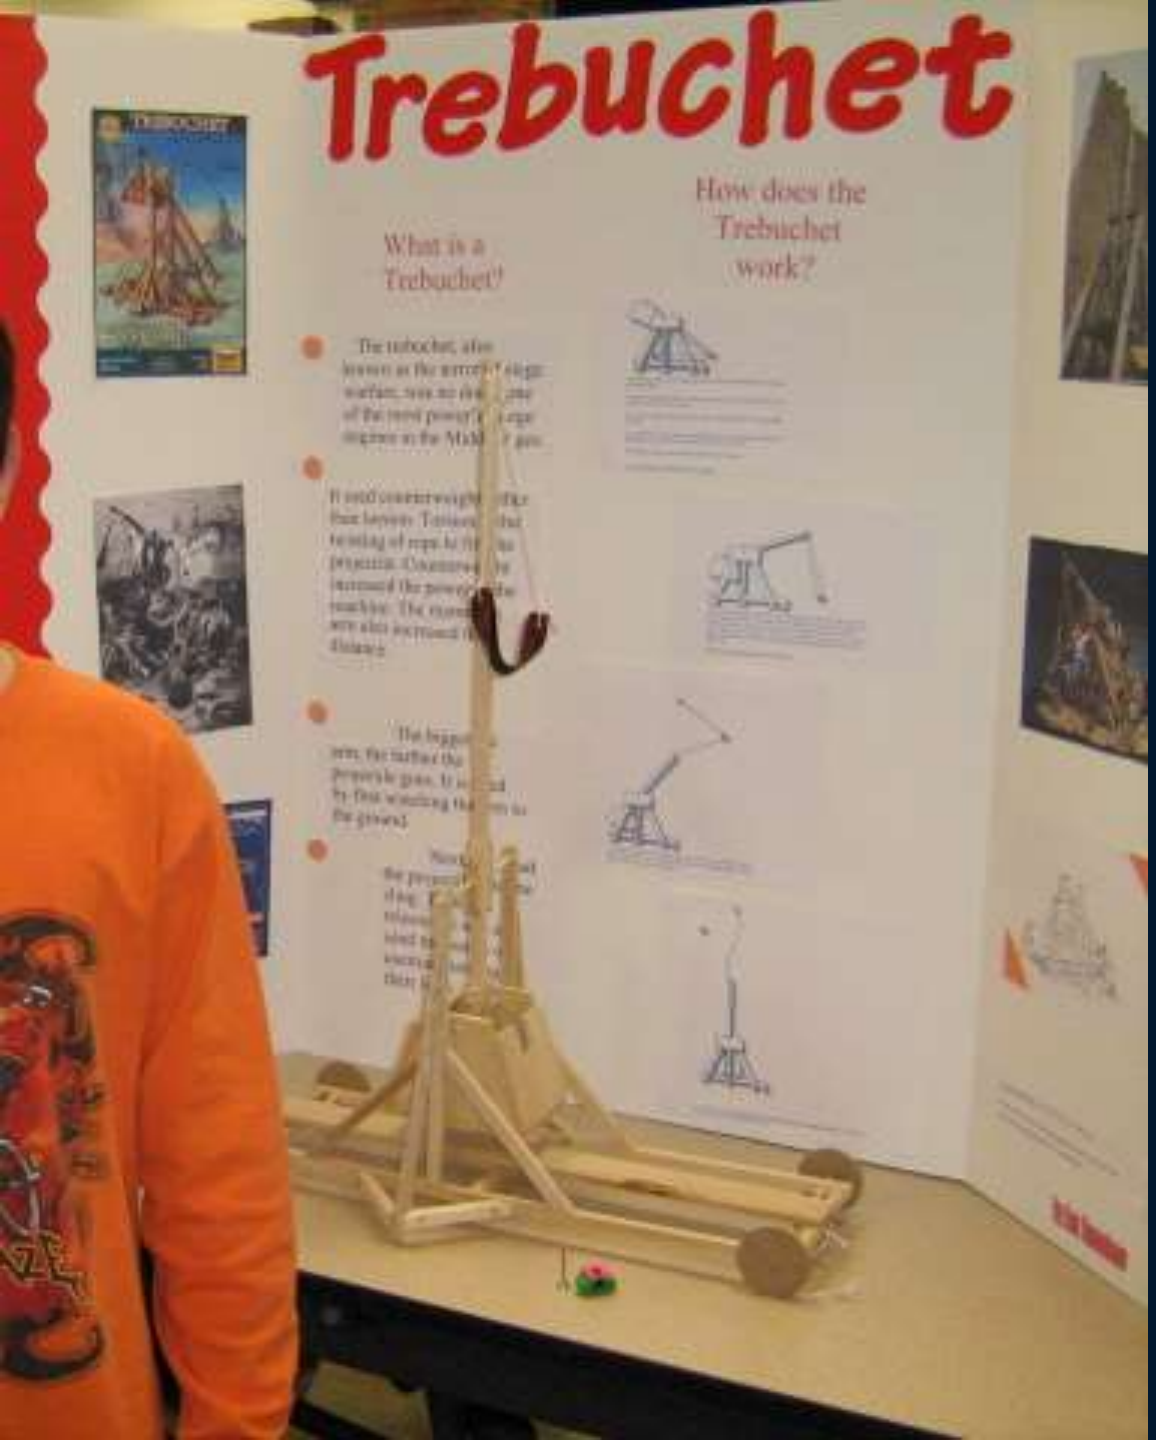
Why should you avoid writing or drawing on the background?



This student did NOT write anything on this board!

All drawings, letters, photos, and text were done separately, then cut out, then pasted on the board.

This student used “flip” tabs.

When is it a good time to glue everything down?
